Students polled

At SIU, it's Carter and Thompson

Editor's note: To closely approximate how SIU students will vote Tuesday for President and governor, students of the Journalism 305 class, "Precision Journalism," telephoned 250 students to determine their preferences. It should be noted that because of the size of the survey population, an error margin of eight percentage points can be expected when applying the results of the survey to the SIU population as a whole.

By Ken Temkin
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Jimmy Carter held a narrow lead over Gerald Ford in a survey of SIU-C students by a School of Journalism class.

In the race for governor, the survey found Republican James Thompson had a 5 to 1 lead over Democrat Mike Howlett among registered student voters who were polled.

Carter held a lead of 4.2 percentage points—35.6 per cent to 31.4—over Ford among registered voters in the randomly selected sample of 250 students.

But a winner could not be predicted in the presidential contest because of the small size of the sample and the resulting error margin of 8 percentage points in projecting the results to the student population as a whole.

A little over three-fourths of the students contacted in the poll said they are registered to vote in next week's election. Sixty per cent of those said they are registered in Jackson County.

The survey was conducted by telephone by a class in "Precision Journalism" taught by Prof. L. Erwin Atwood. It was completed before Carter's campaign swing into Carbondale Tuesday.

According to the survey, 35.6 per cent of the registered voters polled would vote for Carter if the election were held this week, 31.4 per cent for Ford, 10.8 per cent for McCarthy with 18 per cent saying they were undecided.

Of the undecideds, 33.3 per cent

avored Carter, 27.8 per cent favored Ford, 9.3 per cent favored McCarthy and 27.8 per cent remained undecided.

Among those students who are not registered to vote, the survey found no substantial difference in presidential voting preference patterns.

Among all those surveyed, registered as well as non-registered, Carter was the choice of 35.2 per cent. Ford of 30.8 per cent, McCarthy of 10.4 per cent with 18.8 per cent undecided.

Fifty-three point two per cent of the students polled claimed to consider themselves to be either independent, members of a third party, or having no

Student government to quiz CIPS about proposed increases

By Steve Hahn
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU Student Government representatives will have a chance to question the logic of a proposed Central Illinois Public Services Company (CIPS) utility rate increase Monday.

The representatives will primarily question CIPS's construction and profit policies in relation to the proposed rate increases. Carol Koerber and Tom McEllen, student senators, said Thursday.

The representatives' questions will come during an Illinois Commerce Commission (ICC) hearing on the increase.

CIPS is asking the ICC to allow rate increases of 21 per cent for retail electric rates and 11 per cent for retail natural gas. The monthly increase for the average consumer will be about $4.50 for electricity, and $2.08 for natural gas, according to CIPS estimates.

Jon Becker, spokesman for the Southern Counties Action Movement

(SCAM), said CIPS is requesting the increase to provide money for its Newton plant and to increase profits for its stockholders. Newton is located in Jasper County about 23 miles southeast of Effingham.

Koerber and McEllen said they feel building a new power plant as proposed would unfairly burden students who would probably move out of the area before its completion. They also said stockholders do not need to increase their profits. Student Government will seek to have the corporate structure of CIPS examined for inefficiency, they said.

CIPS was granted $10.7 million in electric and gas rate increases March 24. The current proposed rate increases would result in additional annual billings of $42 million from electric customers and $5 million from natural gas users, according to CIPS figures.

The ICC, after hearing testimony both for and against the rate increases, will make the final decision which is expected to come late this year or early next year.

Carter, Ford stalking industrial states

By David C. Martin
Associated Press Writer

Campaigning in key industrial states, President Ford sought to demonstrate his leadership in nuclear policy Thursday while Jimmy Carter attempted to persuade, but not promise, voters that their taxes would be lower if he is elected.

Ford, campaigning in Cincinnati, Ohio, unveiled plans for an international effort to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons. He coupled his proposals with a promise that construction of uranium enrichment facilities in Portsmouth, Ohio, would begin early next year and would mean 6,000 new jobs.

Carter told a rally in Cleveland he cannot promise a substantial tax reduction that a day earlier he had declared would be the "almost inevitable" result of his economic policies after four years in the White House. The Democratic candidate said that with a good rate of economic growth and lowered inflation and unemployment "perhaps" there could be "some tax cuts."

He added, "I am very careful not to promise that for sure."

Ohio with 25 electoral votes is believed to be leaning slightly toward Carter, although both sides say the race is tight.

At a stop in Indianapolis, Ford told an overflow crowd at the Scottish Rite Cathedral that his Democratic opponent has suffered "a precipitous decline in popularity" because his campaign depends on a "discredited old formula of more promises, more programs, more spending."

It was part of a continuing note of GOP optimism.

Aboard Air Force One, White House chief of staff Richard B. Cheney contended that Ford's campaign has made such inroads in the Deep South that the President may need to carry only four of the eight most populous industrial states.

Cheney said the President and his strategists originally had thought he would have to carry at least five of the "big eight"—New York, New Jersey,

Committee to look at student fee equitability

By Bonnie Gamble
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The equitability of student fees will be the subject of study by a committee formed by Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs.

"Undoubtedly, there will be some changes in fees," Swinburne said Thursday. He cited University budget cuts and utility rate increases as reasons fees might increase.

Swinburne said he formed the committee because he thinks a more equitable method of assessing fees is needed. Presently, Swinburne said, part-time students pay the same fees paid by full-time students.

Swinburne said some part-time students pay as much in fees as in tuition.

The committee will study the Student Center, Health Service and Student Welfare and Recreation Funds (SWRF) fees, Swinburne said.

The Student Center lost $368,000 this year in tuition funds retained by the state, Swinburne said. Last year the Student Center was authorized a budget of $1,095,000 and all but $10,000 was spent, Swinburne said.

Swinburne said increasing utility costs also contribute to the Student Center's financial problems.

The possibility of dental care being added to student health benefits will be studied. Swinburne hopes to gather student input in three ways by:

—placing a referendum on the student election ballots in November asking students if they favor dental benefits.

—reviewing the results of a Student Affairs Research and Evaluation Center's random sampling of student opinion on dental care.

—a survey distributed by the Health Service concerning medical self-help will contain some questions about dental care.

A dental program could probably be started at a cost of about $2 per student per semester, Swinburne said.

"If the students say they want a dental program," Swinburne said, "we will present it to the Board of Trustees."

News Roundup

Ehrlichman to begin serving prison sentences

WASHINGTON (AP)—Preferring not to wait for Supreme Court review of his convictions, John D. Ehrlichman asked on Thursday to be sent to prison to serve his Watergate sentences. Two federal judges agreed and ordered him to report to a federal work camp in Arizona by Nov. 1. When he begins serving his minimum 30 months, Ehrlichman will become the first of the three men closest to Richard M. Nixon—an the highest ranking member of the Nixon administration to date—to be imprisoned.

His lawyers could not be reached to determine whether Ehrlichman will now drop his intended appeals to the Supreme Court. Ehrlichman, Nixon's domestic counselor and his No. 2 aide, was convicted and sentenced in both the so-called White House "plumbers" case and in the Watergate cover-up. His appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals was rejected in each case.

Rhodesia settlement talks start pessimistically

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP)—Leaders of Rhodesia's blacks and whites began their conference Thursday on the Africa country's future in an atmosphere of pessimism, bitterness and suspicion. The historic meeting at the Palais des Nations brought white Prime Minister Ian Smith face to face with four nationalist leaders vying to succeed him.

Britain told the delayed opening session all five Rhodesian delegations must have the shared aim of black majority rule within two years. A welcoming address by the British chairman, Ivor Richard, was followed by a brief discussion of administrative details. The opening meeting adjourned until Friday morning, when chief delegates are to make formal opening statements.

Delay and demonstration marked the start of the talks that came about largely through the initiative of U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and his mission through Africa last month.

IRA political organizer assassinated

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP)—Three youths assassinated IRA political organizer Maire Drumm as she lay in a hospital bed Thursday night, police reported. They said the youths burst into Ward 3 of the Mater Hospital in Belfast, pulled out revolvers and shot Mrs. Drumm. Another woman patient in the ward was shot in the leg, police said. The youths then ran out of the ward and disappeared.

Mrs. Drumm, 56, was former vice president and principal political organizer for the Provisional Sinn Fein, the legal political arm of the outlawed Irish Republican Army's Provisional wing. The Provisional IRA is a mainly Roman Catholic movement fighting to drive the British from Northern Ireland and unite the province with the Irish republic. Mrs. Drumm resigned her Sinn Fein post several weeks ago for health reasons. She entered the hospital, which caters to Catholic patients, for a cataract operation on her eyes.

party preference. This total far outnumbers the percentage of students claiming to be affiliated with either the Democratic or Republican parties—40.2 per cent.

Most of those students claiming to be affiliated with either the Democratic or Republican parties reported they would vote for the nominee of their party. Only 6.8 per cent of the Democrats polled said they would be voting for Ford and only 2.4 per cent of the Republicans polled said they would vote for the Democratic nominee.

Independents were almost evenly split between the two presidential candidates, with Carter holding only a 4.3 percentage point lead over Ford.

Minority party preferences in both the presidential and gubernatorial races accounted for only small portions of the survey's results. Only 1.6 per cent of the students polled said they would vote for a minority presidential candidate and 3.2 per cent said they would vote for minority party candidates for governor.

The survey results indicate that more than 70 per cent of Carter's supporters are either very certain or quite certain of their decision to vote for the former Georgia governor.

Among the students registered to vote, Thompson's lead over Howlett was 64.9 per cent to 13.4 per cent, almost 5 to 1. Among the non-registered, Thompson's margin dropped to 2½ to 1 over Howlett.

Thompson's lead was generated by a large cross-over of Democrats. Among students claiming to be Democrats, Thompson holds an almost 2 to 1 margin over Howlett—45.8 per cent indicating support for Thompson, 25.4 per cent supporting Howlett.

Among the survey group as a whole, Thompson received 58.2 per cent of the student's support, Howlett received 13.6 per cent and 19.2 per cent remained undecided.

Of those undecided, 25.4 per cent are leaning towards Thompson, 10.2 per cent towards Howlett with 52.5 per cent remaining as undecided.

Search begins for new Student Work director

By Joan Pearlman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A search committee is being organized to find a director of Student Work and Financial Assistance, according to Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs.

Frank Adams, director of student work and financial assistance since 1965, will retire in February ending a 20-year career at SIU.

Harvey Welch, dean of student life, said Wednesday that a graduate student, a representative from the Faculty Senate, a staff member from Student Work and Financial Assistance, a representative from Student Affairs, and three undergraduate students will participate in the national search for a replacement for Adams.

He said he is going to request that all committee members review and rank the applicants before a decision is made on which candidates they will submit to Swinburne as their recommendation.

The director of Student Work and Financial Assistance is in charge of about 33 different types of financial aid programs handling up to $22 million in funds, Welch said.

Although the job qualifications have not been decided on yet, Welch said he thinks that four or five years experience in a field very closely related to financial aid will be required.

Swinburne said Thursday that a salary had not been discussed yet. The salary for the new director of Student Work and Financial Assistance will probably be based on his educational background and previous experience.

Welch said that Don Wheeler, Student Government vice president; Virginia Benning, housing administrator III; and Thomas Westbrook, a representative from the Graduate Student Council, are the only people that have been named to the search committee at this time.

Rock 'n roll revival: Elvis still 'The King' in Arena fans' hearts

By Michael P. Mullen
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Elvis Presley, the "King" of rock and roll, packed the Arena to the rafters Wednesday night. What can one add to that kind of testimony?

Elvis may no longer be the hip-swinging teenager who burst on to the music scene some years ago, but the differences between then and now went unnoticed at the Arena Wednesday night. How can you argue with nostalgia?

The Arena took on a carnival atmosphere. Vendors with pennants, buttons, posters and souvenir programs stalked through the crowds hyping their wares.

The crowd was a never-ending source of interest. The ages of the audience ranged from grandparents in their 60's to sub-teens. It was, judging from the make-up of the crowd, a concert for everyone.

Actually, it was more of a show than a concert. There were four opening acts: a warm up band (with a horn section that was part of the band that backed Elvis); a four-man gospel group; a comedian; and a Supremes-style group of female singers.

The crowd moaned as each of these warm-up acts were introduced and, with the exception of the female vocalists, the Sweet Inspiration, that was more than they deserved. The comedian was particularly boring and his humor was trite to say the least.

The warm-up acts served their purpose of whetting the audiences' appetite for Elvis. A brief intermission followed their perfunctory entertainment. The novelty vendors again hawked through the crowd.

Finally, the lights went down, Elvis' official band, featuring such Nashville session men as David Briggs on keyboards and James Burton on guitar, took the state along with a vocal group made up of various folks from the warm-up acts.

The strains of "Thus Spake Zarathustra" (the Monolith Theme from the movie "2001") filled the darkened Arena. The crowd held its breath in mute anticipation, then burst into screams and applause as the "King," resplendent in a white and gold jumpsuit, jogged on to the Arena stage.

Elvis seemed more intent on exposing his profile to every possible camera angle than he was on delivering a first-rate vocal performance. His songs were short and sweet; the numbers seemed to be little more than verse, chorus, verse, chorus ending. He mumbled and forgot the lyrics to "Fever."

But Elvis did capture that old dynamic feeling on at least one number. His rendition of "America the Beautiful" was the one time his voice and performance seemed to live up to the promise of his legend.

Throughout his set Elvis wandered from one side of the stage to the other throwing scarves to the greedy fans who dogged his every step near the front and sides of the stage.

As far as the fans in the Arena were concerned, it was an entertaining and exciting concert. Few seemed to mind that the heyday of Elvis' career is long passed and that his present shows are little more than a reflection of past glory.

Wednesday night in the Arena, Elvis was again the "King" of rock and roll.

Strong gains made by Ford in California

Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Texas and California. But Cheney said Republican polls indicate Ford's prospects in the South look promising in Louisiana, Mississippi, Virginia, North and South Carolina and Texas.

As a result, Cheney said, the President now might need to carry only four of the "big eight"—but he didn't say which four.

Ford has made strong gains in voter preference polls in California, whose 45 electoral votes give it the biggest clout of any state. The latest California poll shows the President one percentage point ahead of Carter after trailing by 20 points two months ago.

But Democratic leaders there are claiming "it's all coming together" now in the Carter campaign in California. Democrats outnumber Republicans by about 2.1 million in the state following a registration drive that signed up three new Democrats for every new Republican.

Ford told newspaper editors last week that "California is the real key state in any realistic combination."

SIU general secretary to address faculty

By Joan Pearlman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The general secretary of the SIU University System, John M. Brown, said he will speak to the Faculty Senate next month to clarify misunderstandings of the operation and organization of the board staff.

Brown heads the eight-member board staff which serves the SIU Board of Trustees and coordinates the action between SIU-C and SIU-E.

"I don't have a list of misunderstandings, but I have a sense that there is not enough understanding" of the functions and organization of the board staff, Brown said Thursday.

"If my sense is wrong and I find out that there are no misunderstandings then I'll be happy," Brown said.

Brown said he called John Jackson, president of the Faculty Senate when he "sensed" that there was some misunderstanding among the faculty on how his office should function.

Jackson said Thursday that the Brown called to discuss ways of tackling a perceived communication problem. Jackson said he suggested that Brown should speak to the Faculty Senate.

Brown said he "doubted" that he would develop a formal speech when he talks to the senate Nov. 16. He said the board staff's budget and the office's organization might be areas he would cover in his talk.

Jackson said there would probably be questions from the members of the senate concerning the salaries of the faculty and the board staff.

Jackson said he felt the monthly reports of David Bateman, vice president of the Faculty Senate, to the senate were "a significant precipitating factor" in Brown's decision to speak to the senate, but not the only one.

In the first two meetings of the Faculty Senate, Bateman delivered reports criticizing the board staff.

In his reports, Bateman discussed salary increases given to Alice A. Griffin, assistant board secretary, and Mary S. Walker, Brown's assistant. Bateman also criticized the two days the board staff spent in New Harmony, Ind. in retreat.

Howlett says Thompson was "blackmailed"

CHICAGO (AP)—Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael Howlett said Thursday he believes that Marjorie L. Everett "blackmailed" James Thompson in return for her testimony against the late Otto Kerner.

Howlett, continuing his attack on his Republican opponent's prosecution while U.S. attorney of the former governor, said he believes Mrs. Everett told Thompson in effect that she would not testify without his help in getting her a California racing license.

Howlett accused his Republican opponent Thompson of "stretching the truth" and a cover-up in saying he told the California Racing Board that Mrs. Everett was "a briber."

Several California officials have disputed Thompson's claim that as U.S. attorney for Northern Illinois he told California authorities in January 1972 that Mrs. Everett was "a briber."

Thompson said in response Thursday night that Howlett's "judgement" was wrong. He continued to maintain that he in no way helped Mrs. Everett obtain a license and that he said she was a briber.

Mrs. Everett, who in early 1972 was the major stockholder of two Chicago-area tracks, was a principal prosecution witness in the racetrack bribery trial of Kerner, and sought a license to sit on the board of directors at Hollywood Park in California.

During a Chicago television taping Thursday for a program to aired on Saturday, Howlett said it was his judgement that Mrs. Everett "blackmailed" Thompson by refusing to testify against Kerner unless Thompson didn't intervene in California on her behalf to obtain a license.

Winnie Chambers, producer for the program "Newsmakers" on WBBM-TV, said Howlett made no mention of any evidence to document the blackmail charge.

Earlier, at a news conference, Howlett referred to an April 12, 1972 story from the Chicago Tribune which quoted "the official Justice Department version" of Thompson's meeting in California. The story said "Thompson told California officials that Mrs. Everett was a public-minded citizen and that certain facts of the investigation could not be disclosed because of the pending trial."

Howlett produced a partial transcript from a Jan. 24, 1972 California Racing Board hearing on Mrs. Everett's request, saying the document raised questions about what Thompson told the board.

Woman says she was abused

NAACP to file complaint against police

By Pete Retzbach

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Elbert Simon, president of the Carbondale chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), said Thursday he will file a formal complaint against the Carbondale Police Department Monday on behalf of Christine Murphy.

Murphy alleges she was physically abused by Carbondale Police Officer Michael Maurizio in the police station Oct. 10.

Murphy's sister, Tereta Scott, 24, was arrested last week in connection with the incident. Police said Scott's arrest was the result of further investigation into the Oct. 10 incident.

Scott went with Murphy to the police station Oct. 10 at Murphy's request.

Carbondale police said Thursday that Scott was arrested on a charge of battery, under a city ordinance. Scott is accused of striking Maurizio in the face, which caused his glasses to fall to the floor and break.

Murphy alleges that Maurizio dragged her by the hair and threatened her life.

The incident occurred when Murphy came to pick up her sons who were being held in the police station on suspicion of shoplifting.

Murphy said that when she noticed her sons' bicycles in the station, she asked police to release them. She said the police told her they could not release the bikes because proof of registration could not be established. Murphy alleges that a police officer then started pushing everyone out of the station.

Murphy alleges Maurizio grabbed her by the hair outside the station and said, "this bitch is under arrest." She said she was on her knees, and Maurizio dragged her by the hair back into the station.

Murphy said the police would not release the bicycles even after proof of registration was found.

Howard Hood, Jackson County state's attorney, said in a letter to Murphy that "the police department has been unable to find any ordinance granting them the authority to impound bicycles for not being registered." The letter went on to say, "I believe the police department now understands that they have no authority to impound these bicycles."

Carbondale Police Lt. Jerry Reno said Wednesday that although there is no city ordinance giving police the power to impound bicycles, they can be held if they are suspected of being stolen.

Murphy said Thursday that one of her sons' bicycles is still being held by police. The other was released after she paid $1 for a new license plate.

Murphy contends that her sons' bicycles were registered last year at a teen club on South Illinois Avenue.

Iranian rights need protection

(The following article was signed by: Shohreh Amin Harris, President of CAIFI; Rev. Lloyd Worley, Vice-president Graduate Student Council; Tom Jones, Student Senate President; Tom Matheson, SGAC Lectures Committee; Hugh Muldoon, University Christian Ministries; Mark Harris, Young Socialist Alliance; an Iranian Student Organization representative; and Marydean Worley, Liberal Catholic Church)

As supporters of the Committee for Artistic and Intellectual Freedom in Iran we would like to clarify certain questions raised regarding the recent meeting on "Political Repression in Iran" with Daniel Ellsberg and Reza Baraheni.

First of all, this meeting is an example of the kind of action needed if we are to win the broad numbers of people for the plight of the 100,000 political prisoners. Bringing the truth about the Shah's dictatorship to the public's attention, winning the support of international public opinion, is vital if we are to stay the hand of the Shah's executioners and torturers. The Oct. 7th rally, attended by hundreds, was an important victory in the campaign to defend democratic rights in Iran and secure the release of the men and women locked in the Iranian prisons.

Unfortunately, an attempt was made by the Iranian Student Association (ISA) to disrupt the meeting and confuse the audience by charging that Reza Baraheni is a SAVAK (secret police) agent and that CAIFI is a CIA front. We state unequivocally that these charges are baseless and we challenge the ISA to bring forth their documentation. They have been repeating these charges for three years and have never provided one ounce of proof.

They also claim that no political prisoner is allowed to leave the prisons. Since 1957, 300,000 people have experienced the horror of political imprisonment. There are now about 100,000 political prisoners. The logic of the ISA must brand these 200,000 people who have left the jails as phonies and traitors, as they have done with Baraheni, Sa'edi, Shariati, Tonakaboni, and others.

But the problem is not just that the ISA prefers to live in their own dream world. What is really at issue is that they are using these slanders as a cover, an excuse, for their efforts to disrupt CAIFI activities. In Carbondale they have attempted to disrupt every single CAIFI meeting since 1974. They have shouted down speakers, physically threatened our supporters and, in fact, devoted themselves almost entirely to this campaign against CAIFI at the expense of the few meetings and actions they used to organize against the Shah.

This nationwide campaign of slander and disruption serves no one except the Shah and SAVAK. Reza Baraheni has distinguished himself as the most outspoken and well-known opponent of repression over the last two years. No single Iranian has done more to bring the reality of torture and political repression to the attention of millions of people. It is only natural that the Shah's government would seek to physically silence or at least discredit the opponents of his regime. Several death threats have been made against Baraheni, his niece has been imprisoned, and the Shah has said that Baraheni "used to be our agent." This is where the charges of the ISA come from.

The politics of slander and physical violence are the weapons of dictators and tyrants. There are three groups in the United States all claiming to be the ISA, each accusing the other of being agents of SAVAK. These methods must stop if any united effort in defense of democratic rights in Iran is to succeed. CAIFI is willing to work with all who oppose repression and we call on the Carbondale ISA to stop the slanders and join us in a united effort, or at least, end the disruption of our activities and organize their own meetings and activities against repression.

Trustee candidate picks Camejo-Reid ticket

Millions of people, sick and tired of Ford and Carter, will not vote this year. Of those who do vote some will support McCarthy and many more will back Carter as the "lesser evil." But do any of these candidates offer a solution to the problems facing working people? In our opinion the answer is no.

Carter will continue the same program of slashing health, and education, and welfare expenditures that the Nixon and Ford administrations have launched on a federal level—and that Carter's colleagues in the Democratic city administrations of New York, Detroit, and San Francisco are also carrying out. His insistence that he is not a "big spender," and is against "big government" are only code words for cutting government spending for human needs.

McCarthy speaks of "moderating expectations" and proposes "tax incentives for industry" and "proven devices such as investment credit and accelerated depreciation" to spur the economy. In other words, more giveaways to the rich. At the same time he supports wage-price controls, which can only mean holding down wages while prices continue to rise as previous experience has shown.

McCarthy, Ford, and Carter will continue the foreign policy of backing scores of repressive dictatorships around the world. Last year McCarthy said the United States should maintain its "commitment" to the brutal Park regime in South Korea, including the American troops that bolster that repressive government. All three were silent two weeks ago as U.S.-backed generals slaughtered students in Thailand.

Carter and Ford have not said a word in defense of black rights, which are under attack across the land. Both oppose busing. Both oppose the right to abortion and have spurred an attack on this right in their campaign. Both favor reinstitution of the death penalty. McCarthy has preferred to keep quiet on abortion and busing while right-wing forces have taken the offensive, using the elections as a platform to attack gains won by women and minorities over the past decades.

Is it rational that even one person should be without a job while there is useful, needed work to be done? But capitalism is anything but rational and Carter, Ford, and McCarthy have no real solution to unemployment. In fact, the Democrats, who cultivate the image of a "party of labor" have never brought more jobs except by going to war. Roosevelt in World War II, Truman in Korea, Kennedy and Johnson in Vietnam; war spending and mass murder is the only Democratic party formula for jobs.

The only candidates who place human needs above profits are Peter Camejo and Willie Mae Reid of the Socialist Workers Party. Their program says that we have a right to a job, free medical care, education, an adequate income protected against inflation, and a secure retirement. The Camejo-Reid campaign says that women fighting for abortions rights and the ERA, blacks fighting for desegregation and busing, Chicanos fighting deportation, unionists fighting for living wages and democracy in the unions, should rely only on themselves and their independent political action to win gains.

"Lesser evil" politics has never worked. The vote that is really wasted is the vote for Ford, Carter, or McCarthy. We will vote for Peter Camejo in the spirit of Eugene V. Debs, who said "I would rather vote for what I want and not get it, than to vote for what I don't want and get it."

Campus job seeker can't seem to find one

During the last eight weeks, I have been diligently searching for a job on campus without any luck. First I obtained an ACT form from the Student Work Office. After going through the trouble and time in obtaining the correct information, sending in $4 of hard earned money (I was fortunate enough to have a job during the summer), waiting two weeks for the ACT to be put on file, filling out a job application, applying for two jobs, and not receiving any feedback at all from either one, I decided to vent my frustrations on the editor's ear.

The first job that I applied for was at the Student Health Service. A "friendly" young lady interviewed me, explained the job routine, and gave me the complete brush-off during the entire time, because of my sex I suspect. She told me she was new at the job, had never interviewed anybody, and was surprised to find an applicant so soon after she filed the job opening (I was the first one). She further explained that she needed someone dependable and hadn't yet decided whether to have a morning or afternoon work block.

The second job I applied for was the telephone interviewing job at Faner (which is still open). Considering that I was told I'd be contacted Oct. 12 upon employment, I've taken their hint also.

What this all boils down to is that I desperately need a job, and I am actively seeking one, yet neither the Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance, which so piously lists their advertisement of job openings each day, or the campus employers, which utilize their services, will give employment to a transfer student with no on-campus references. Just how in the hell am I supposed to obtain references "indicating dependability if no one will hire me"? In fact how does one gain employment upon graduation if he isn't given a chance to prove his worth.

Quoting Frank C. Adams, director of Student Work and Financial Assistance: "I'm a great believer in work education. When you combine part-time work and full-time study, you produce a graduate much better prepared to go out in society."

I agree, Mr. Adams, as do other rejected students, I assume.

Pithy wisdom

I have patiently observed the pithy memoranda that appear daily in a window on the Wham overpass and wondered silently how long the intellectual charade would continue. Monday's offering, "Communication is hard work," is an affront to every academic discipline and is absurd prima facie. The author has transformed another ubiquitous concept into a palatable, sugarcoated pearl of wisdom. I would say it more closely resembles a gallstone.

Time for Electoral college problem to surface again

By Don McLeod
AP Political Writer

At just about this time every four years the presidential race usually tightens up enough to remind us that chaos or worse is lurking out there in something called the electoral college.

That is because the candidate who carries the right combination of states and wins in the electoral college becomes president, even if the other guy gets more popular votes.

If nobody gets a majority of the electoral votes, then the House of Representatives elects the president and it can choose anyone it pleases.

None of the more frightful possibilities latent in the electoral college has occurred recently, but they have happened.

Each time it has brought the country to the brink of disaster. And that was back in the days of sailing ships, and not the present nuclear tension, instant global communication and pushbutton reaction.

It's all because when you vote in a presidential election you never vote for a presidential candidate. You vote for people who are running for membership in the electoral college.

Their names may be listed individually on the ballot as electors for the candidate of a political party. Or they may be listed as electors for the individual candidate, who is named on the ballot.

Some states don't name the electors on the ballot at all, but they are still the ones you are voting for. The actual election of a president is left up to the electors, those people you really voted for on the presidential ballot.

Each state gets a number of electors equal to its congressional delegation, one for each of its two senators and one for each House member. This ranges from three for a small state like Delaware to 45 for California.

Every presidential candidate who has qualified for the state's ballot is represented by his own slate of electors. Their actual choice is generally left up to the party or the candidate.

On Nov. 2 the voters in each state elect one of those slates. Then, on the first Monday after the second Wednesday in December—that's Dec. 13 this year—the winning slate in each state meets at the state capital and casts its votes for president and vice president.

The results will be sent to Washington. On Jan. 6, 1977 in a joint session of Congress Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller will open the certificates from each state and the votes will be counted by tellers.

If one of the candidates gets a majority of the electoral votes, Rockefeller will declare him the President-elect, and he will be inaugurated on Jan. 20.

But, if no one gets the majority of electoral votes, no matter how many popular votes he got, the election is turned over to the House of Representatives.

Since the House has a big Democratic majority, it probably would elect a Democrat as president.

But it could pick any native-born American citizen who has reached the age of 35 and has lived in this country at least 14 years. Rather than risk the public wrath, it probably would pick the Democratic nominee.

second place finishers who became president in this manner.

This is possible because the states have chosen to cast their votes in a winner-take-all bloc. So, a candidate might carry several states by wide margins and build up a large popular vote majority with strong showings in other states and still lose the election because he fails to carry some large states by the thinnest of margins.

A president elected by a clique in Congress or a quirk of the electoral mathematics would likely find it almost impossible to govern with any public confidence.

Every four years the question comes up, and just as regularly it is dropped once the election is over. Congressional leaders such as Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., have been trying for years to amend the process, but concede it may take a national disaster before anything is done.

This predicament was cast upon us by the founding fathers with the best of intentions. Their problem was simple enough—no one had ever elected a national chief executive of a large country before.

"A small number of persons selected by their fellow citizens from the general mass, will be most likely to possess the information and discernment requisite to select a president," Alexander Hamilton believed.

The idea was to have the people select the wisest and most respectable leaders from their midst, and this more responsible elite would meet in some grand convention to select the president.

But it never worked out the way the founding fathers planned. First of all, the slate system means voters are not even allowed to do what the founders intended, that is vote for the best men in the community on the basis of their own merit.

The voters must take a whole slate or nothing at all. Therefore the outcome is pre-determined and the main reason for having the electoral college is defeated right at the ballot box.

After some early near catastrophes and the rise of political parties, politicians quickly learned to bind delegates to candidates, which also defeats the deliberative purpose of the college and makes it largely a ceremony.

News Analysis

The House hasn't decided an election in a long time, but it very nearly happened in 1968 when George C. Wallace, running as the American Party nominee, carried several states and almost denied an electoral college majority to Richard M. Nixon, who had beaten Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey and Wallace in the popular vote.

It did happen in 1800, and the House made Thomas Jefferson president after 36 ballots. It happened again in 1824 when Andrew Jackson beat John Quincy Adams in the popular vote in a four-man race. The House made loser Adams president.

Other losers have become president because, although they got fewer votes, they carried states which added up to an electoral majority. Rutherford B. Hayes in 1876 and Benjamin Harrison in 1888 were

Gala Democratic pageant became a dull party

By Jim Wisuri
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

It was a very odd day. What was expected to be a gala pageant designed to launch Jimmy Carter full-tilt into the campaign's final week, and eventually the White House, turned into a Democratic party whose keg had run dry.

At Williamson County Airport, the first signs of a faltering party appeared. And that's when things were supposed to start happening.

After Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Illinois, and Gov. Daniel Walker had already arrived on the scene, Democratic candidate for governor Michael Howlett flew in on a small plane.

Howlett, who has in recent weeks repeatedly predicted an upset victory over Republican James Thompson on Nov. 2, a la Harry Truman, did nothing at the airport to show his confidence of victory.

After disembarking, Howlett ignored the hundreds of potential voters lined up for a glimpse of Jimmy, opting instead for a handshake with his best buddy from the March primaries—Gov. Walker.

Howlett, who trails Thompson in the polls anywhere between 25 to 35 points, depending on whose survey you trust, stood on the runway next to Walker as Peanut One taxied to a halt.

The wind whipped up for a moment. It caught the vent in the back of Howlett's navy blue suit coat revealing a garish leopard-skin lining.

The national correspondents standing behind me in the cordoned press area began to chuckle at the overweight candidate's appearance. Pointing at the lining, one correspondent summed up what has hurt the Illinois Secretary of state throughout his campaign: "Straight out of Mayor Daley's back pocket."

If it was a Democratic party on Tuesday, Howlett and Walker were the party poopers.

The crowd on campus could sense it. Both men were greeted as if they were Prohibition candidates.

Something also seemed wrong when Carbondale's Sen. Ken Buzbee, D-Carbondale, tried to draw a parallel between the Carter appearance Tuesday and one on campus 16 years earlier by another Democratic presidential hopeful, John F. Kennedy.

But Buzbee foreshadowed in his remarks before the peanut farmer arrived what would be the story of the day—the tree dwellers.

All around the Free Forum, those who could scale the heights of the surrounding arbor did. Damn the weak limbs, weak hearts, or week of work it would take to pay for repairs on a camera that fell from a tree.

When JFK spoke in 1960, Buzbee said there were people hanging out in the trees. "I don't think anyone of us was as high as you guys, though," he quipped to resounding cheers from the masses at varying levels of altitude.

And of course, there was evangelist Max Lynch, high in the tree behind the speakers' platform, and high on the word of the Lord.

If there was still a Democratic party going on—doubtful after Howlett's doer predictions that the "smell of victory is in the air" and the "Democrats are on the move"—the preacher man ended all the immoralism that goes on at such affairs.

Apparently, he also ended Carter's speech early, which was just as well. For Jimmy's address only accentuated the smell which Howlett referred to as victory, and reminded others of manure.

And the Democratic voters may indeed be on the move—over to the independent and Republican candidates come Election Day.

Workers protest power plant safety

BRAIDWOOD. (AP)—An estimated 1,000 construction workers building a $1 billion nuclear power plant for Commonwealth Edison Co. south of Braidwood, stayed off the job today in a protest over allegedly unsafe working conditions.

Sylvester Ware, 29, of Chicago, and John Short, 46, of Joliet were injured at the construction site Wednesday and hospitalized in Joliet, authorities said. Ware was listed in fair condition. Short was listed in good condition.

One of the workers said the men were injured when a conveyor belt carrying concrete collapsed on top of them. Arthur Archer, a spokesman for Newberg & Associates, the construction firm, said federal safety inspectors had inspected the site and found no unsafe conditions.

"I don't think we have a problem," he said.

Candidates strike religious harmony with churches

By George W. Cornell
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—You couldn't call it a hymn sing, but religious notes have run like a refrain through the presidential campaign. The reverent overtures still were sounding as the windup neared.

Not to miss a beat, Democratic candidate Jimmy Carter met for about an hour with evangelical leaders in mid-October, just as the Republican, Ronald Ford, had done the month before.

They also had huddled with Roman Catholic bishops. And they had given their assurance to Jews about sustaining the state of Israel.

The religious chord also hummed through a score of other moral issues—abortion, honesty in government, Arab anti-Jewish pressure on business firms, the Supreme Court ban on school-sponsored prayers, racial justice, armaments, foreign policy, relieving the poor and jobless, even about taste in language.

Communication outlets of several church bodies issued summaries of the stands they have taken on various questions, along with the stated positions of the candidates.

Such an analysis in the Lutheran Church in America weekly, The Lutheran, pointed out that it was neither "possible nor desirable" for the church to endorse either candidate, but offered the comparison to help voters make up their minds.

Similar nonpartisanship was stressed by various other church appraisals of the issues, including those by the Roman Catholic bishops, the interdenominational National Council of Churches and by a series of articles for the Southern Baptist Press.

"Southern Baptists must neither support nor oppose Jimmy Carter simply because he is a fellow Southern Baptist," advised the Rev. C. Welton Gaddy of the Southern Baptist Christian Life Commission. "Episcopalians should neither support nor oppose Gerald Ford because he is an Episcopalian".

But the church guidance about the issues flowed heavily, and paid political ads for the candidates showed up in religious publications.

At his meeting in the White House with evangelical leaders, Ford declared his "commitment to the Christian faith" and that he had a "relationship with Jesus Christ through my church and through my daily life."

"Prayer is very important to me," he told leaders of the National Association of Evangelicals and National Association of Religious Broadcasters. To questions, he also discussed ethical issues in various national and foreign policy matters.

To know Elvis is to love him

By Melissa Malkovich
Entertainment Editor

Unbiased critics aside, there was one fan at the Elvis concert Wednesday night who just "couldn't say anything bad about it."

"He was just great," said Robert Harris, an SIU University Police officer. Harris had definitely been biased, though. Besides having seen Presley in concert some 20 years ago at Kiel Auditorium, Harris served as Presley's official escort while he was in Carbondale Wednesday night. He got to see Presley before, during and after the concert.

Before he picked up Presley at the Williamson County Airport, he was warned by Elvis' head security man that "he wouldn't talk much because he concentrates on the show." He found the security man's observations true, but "it was quite an experience to meet him," Harris said.

When he whisked Presley into an Oldsmobile Regency 98 at 8:45 p.m. Wednesday for the ride to the Arena, he found Presley subdued.

"After the show, he did a complete reverse. He smiled and talked and even told jokes. He told one about how his father once sold their house for a Model-T."

"It was a pleasant surprise," Harris said. "We had gotten subtle hints not to try to converse with him beforehand. But on the way back, he really got into it."

Harris also said Elvis "really got into" his performance, and it was every bit as good as the one he had seen in 1956 in St. Louis. "He was right at the top at the time."

Only a few disturbances occurred, when Elvis would throw scarves into the crowd. "Girls would run down and... well, not only girls, but mommas and grammamas would run down to get them."

One scarf's fate was to be halved when two women in their 30's started to fight over it.

"Each had half of the scarf and neither of them were about to let go," I said. "How 'bout half a piece," and an officer got his pocket knife and cut it in half."

As for Elvis' performance, Harris believed "he really had a ball up there." And though it was rumored Elvis was still overweight after admitting himself to a hospital to lose poundage, Harris said he "really looked good."

After the show, Harris found out Elvis' plane had broken down and Presley had to stay in the Arena for about 25 minutes. During the time he was there, Presley was enthusiastic and friendly — the opposite emotions displayed on the ride to the Arena. Elvis left much of his enthusiasm behind — with Robert Harris.

Issues

Strip Mining

Favors the bill passed by the Congress; favors a national commitment to Eastern deep-mined coal as the principal source of expanded coal production.

Vetted strip-mining legislation twice; favors expansion of Western, strip-mined coal production as a key to increased domestic energy production.

Water Pollution

Favors leaving the 1953 best available control technology standard in the Water Pollution Control Act; appointed strong enforcers to head the Georgia pollution program when Governor.

Has submitted several sets of weakening amendments to the Water Pollution Act to the Congress; has suspended Phase II of the Corps of Engineers program to protect wetlands, but opposed deletion of the program.

Nuclear Safety

Opposed the California initiative, but favored the somewhat less restrictive Oregon initiative.

Actively employed the Federal Energy Administration to oppose all the nuclear safety initiatives. Favored creation of independent nuclear regulatory commission.

Reversal of the Price-Anderson Act limiting liability for nuclear accidents

Opposed

Favored

Prevention of air quality deterioration

Favors strict control of the requirement for prevention of such deterioration as set forth in the Clean Air Act.

Favors elimination of the prohibition against significant deterioration of air quality from the federal Clean Air Act.

Land-use planning

Favors federal land-use planning assistance to states which show that their plans will be implemented and will be protecting critical environmental areas within three years.

Opposed federal land-use planning grants on budgetary grounds.

Issues

Nuclear Power Moratorium

"I favor legislation to create a Power Plant Siting Board and leave such decisions... (moratorium)... to them after input from all relevant quarters."

"I support continued and accelerated research on the safety and other adverse aspects of nuclear power generation, including the disposition of waste. Whether or not a moratorium is advisable depends upon the rate at which we can advance our knowledge in this area."

Energy Conservation

"We will be in no good position to encourage energy conservation by individual and business consumers until we have a model plan for government. The Division of Energy should speed development of a formal conservation plan for state owned facilities which could be implemented by executive order."

"Far too little has been done to encourage energy conservation. I would favor more stringent building and construction standards."

"Bottle Bill"

"Because I am not convinced that sufficient information exists to demonstrate that the energy and environmental impact outweighs the potential job loss to a major in utrial state such as Illinois, the bottle bill controversy requires further study."

"Most proposed alternatives could cause substantial economic dislocations in several Illinois communities. I would favor provisions which prevent environmental damage while minimizing economic dislocations to persons involved in the container industry. Arguments that supermarket employment will rise are not convincing."

Middle Fork

My reasoning for voting for the Middle Fork-Vermillion River project is that Southern Illinois has Crab Orchard Lake, Kinkaid Lake, Rend Lake, Little Grassy Lake, Washington County Lake, Randolph County Lake, and many other projects that may be used for sources of water supply to communities conservation and recreation. We in Southern Illinois would not have had these facilities if somebody from the Central and Northern part of the state had not voted with us for them. After listening to the legislative leaders in the Middle Fork area, I made my decision to vote for their project.

I oppose the construction of a reservoir on the Middle Fork of the Vermillion River based on the availability of an alternative source of water supply for Danville, the existing recreational uses of the river which do not need to be modified, and the ecological values represented by the river in its current state. In addition, Illinois does not have the financial resources to fund this project.

Hunting in State Parks

The only time that I believe there should be hunting in state parks would be when it happened under the supervision of conservation officers or game control personnel and only for the purpose of controlling wildlife. Otherwise no.

As long as the Department of Conservation assures the safety of all park users, then limited hunting should be allowed in state parks. If, however, problems in management occur or the safety of park users is threatened, I would reconsider my position.

Land Use

Taxing farmland under the system being used today is making it almost prohibitive for some owners to continue to own land. Potential productivity bothers me. In our area the sale of land for the minerals such as coal has enhanced the market value. Some areas where there are valuable minerals, the productivity is nearly zero. I think there must be a study and a given plan using common sense in taxing.

I support a law which would allow a farmer to be exempt from a reassessment of his land for a period of five years if that land is threatened by urbanization. In addition, land-use planning needs to be adopted in many areas as an alternative to haphazard growth.

Wetlands Pollution Regulations

I can not say that I am for or against strong environmental laws. I believe common sense must be used. Laws should be carefully prepared before being presented to the General Assembly. We need a careful re-evaluation of environmental control.

Illinois has a model system for dealing with environmental problems which must be maintained to ensure future protection of the environment. I, therefore, would not seek to weaken the existing structure of legal authority or the capability of our environmental protection agencies to effectively respond to environmental problems.

State Representative

Bruce Richmond

Ralph Dunn

Middle Fork

Because of ecological and economical considerations, I would exercise extreme caution in making this decision.

"I am uncertain as to any future position but previously I voted for construction of the Middle Fork Reservoir."

Hunting in State Parks

I am concerned about hunting in the State Parks except where there is a wild game refuge for the purpose of deer herd control, etc.

"I am not opposed to hunting in state parks as long as safety can be maintained."

Land Use

I will support legislation which provides for equitable methods of property taxation to encourage continued use of appropriate lands for agriculture and open spaces.

Question was not asked.

Wetlands Pollution Regulations

I will support legislation which will assist and encourage appropriate state agencies in developing responsible and economically feasible regulations and standards. We must remember that most air and water rules are mandated by the Federal Government.

I favor certain revisions in existing law which would improve due process in the regulatory system.

Volcano authority loses job when explosion fails to occur

By John Vinocur
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — Haroun Tazieff, one of the world's leading authorities on volcanos, has been fired from his post as head of a study institute after a dispute over a Caribbean volcano that was supposed to explode like an atomic bomb last summer—but never did.

Claude Allegre, director of the Global Physics Institute, a branch of Paris University, said Thursday he had dismissed Tazieff as head of the institute's volcanology service.

Tazieff, 83, who remains director of the National Center for Scientific Research, said he was fired because the institute considered that he left the French island of Guadeloupe before all danger of an eruption by the volcano, La Soufriere, had disappeared.

Other sources indicated that the firing stemmed from disparaging comments Tazieff made about French scientists who considered the volcano to be more of a danger than he did.

The move came as Guadeloupe authorities resumed full municipal services and refugees were allowed to return to their homes Thursday for the first time since August in the island's administrative capital of Basse Terre.

About 70,000 people were evacuated from an area around the volcano Aug. 17 after scientists said that La Soufriere's eruption was inevitable. They predicted that it could have to force of several atomic bombs and posed the danger of "monstrous" and "catastrophic" damage.

The evacuation caused substantial economic losses on Guadeloupe and the government has instituted an emergency relief program to help offset the impact.

Tazieff told a reporter that he believes his dismissal was a "personal settling of scores." He said the position of Allegre, the institute's director, was that "if I stayed in Guadeloupe I would have been able to calm down the population and the government wouldn't have had to go ahead with the evacuation."

"My answer is that if you ask an expert like me his opinion, he's not there to serve as a tranquilizer," Tazieff said.

"From May to September I said four times that La Soufriere wasn't dangerous. It remains extremely moderate and no one should ever have spoken about an eruption. If it had been dangerous, I would have stayed. But I thought it wasn't and I said it. The facts showed me to be right," he said.

Senate rules for granting funds set

By Joan Pearlman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer
An abbreviated version of the Student Senate met Wednesday evening and did not waste any time dispensing with the business at hand.

Within 40 minutes, 16 of the 22 elected senators passed two resolutions, allocated $400 for the printing of Student-to-Student Grant Applications and gave $150 to Telpo, a student-operated film production organization.

A resolution requesting that the senators adopt a Finance Committee Policy for the 1976-77 academic year was submitted by Charles Rocek, an East Side senator, and passed by the senators.

The policy lists guidelines for student organizations seeking funding from the Student Senate.

The policy states that the "first priority of disbursements of student activity fee monies will be given to projects which affect the greatest number of students, projects for which there is a greater need and projects for which no other source of funding is available."

The senate also unanimously passed a resolution to form a joint Student Senate-Graduate Student Council committee for the purpose of revising the proposed Student Bill of Rights so it can be presented to the Board of Trustees for approval. The proposed Student Bill of Rights was presented to the Student Senate on April 7, 1976 and received unanimous approval.

Pete Allison, a West side senator, told the senators that the Bill of Rights "is lost somewhere in the bureaucracy." He said that the committee would study the Bill of Rights for possible revisions and try to get it to the board before the end of the school year.

Jimmy Carter on Energy:

"It is time that we had a nationwide program of energy conservation. The potential for dramatic energy conservation remains untapped. Our energy waste in transportation is 85% ; in generating electricity it is 65%. Overall, 50% of our energy is wasted. The federal government itself must set an example for energy conservation and must insure that its own regulations do not encourage energy waste."

"We need to encourage mass transit as a means of energy conservation; strict fuel efficiency standards and ratings must be established for motor vehicles; rigid enforcement of energy-saving speed limits is essential; efficiency standards and better labeling for electric appliances are a pre-requisite. Moreover, mandatory improvements in building insulation must be established."

"To help conserve our dwindling energy supplies, unnecessary electrical power plant construction should be stopped and advertising at the consumers' expense to encourage increased electric consumption should be restricted. Rate structures which discourage total consumption and peak power demand, which give greater protection to the average consumer, should be established."

"We must substantially shift our efforts to increase our production of coal, of which we have a 200-year supply, without at the same time destroying the surface of our lands through uncontrolled strip mining. At the same time, make a major research and development thrust to greatly increase the use of solar energy."

Presentation by Governor Carter to the Platform Committee of the Democratic Party

"(A)ll of us must recognize that the widespread use of nuclear power brings many risks. Power reactors may malfunction and cause widespread radiological damage, unless stringent safety requirements are met. Radioactive wastes may be a menace to future generations and civilizations, unless they are effectively isolated within the biosphere forever. And terrorists or other criminals may steal plutonium and make weapons to threaten society or its political leaders with nuclear violence, unless strict security measures are developed and implemented to prevent nuclear theft."

"Beyond these dangers, there is the fearsome prospect that the spread of nuclear reactors will mean the spread of nuclear weapons to many nations. By 1990, the developing nations alone will produce enough plutonium in their reactors to build 3,000 Hiroshima-size bombs a year, and, by the year 2000 worldwide plutonium production may be over one million pounds a year—the equivalent of 100,000 bombs a year—about half of it outside the United States."

"The prospect of a nuclear future will be particularly alarming if a large number of nations develop their own national plutonium reprocessing facilities with the capacity to extract plutonium from the spent fuel. Even if such facilities are subject to inspection by the International Atomic Energy Agency, and even if the countries controlling them are parties to the Non-Proliferation Treaty, plutonium stockpiles can be converted to atomic weapons at a time of crisis, without fear of effective sanction by the international community."

Address by Governor Carter on Nuclear Energy and World Order
at the United Nations, May 13, 1976

"During the past few years, two-thirds of all federal research and development funds went for atomic power, primarily for the liquid metal fast breeder reactor (LMFBR). Since this potential source of energy will not be economically feasible until the price of natural uranium increases several times over, since England, France, and the USSR have design experience with the LMFBR, and because of the mounting costs and environmental problems, our excessive emphasis on this project should be severely reduced and converted to a long-term, possibly multinational effort."

"Unless we conserve energy drastically, make a major shift to coal, and substantially increase our use of solar energy, we will have no alternative to greatly increased dependence on nuclear power. As one who is intimately familiar with the problems and potential of nuclear energy, I believe we must make every effort to keep that dependence to a minimum."

SIU's energy conservation program dwindles in support

By Bob Morely
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Is SIU slowly abandoning its energy conservation programs? It appears so.

In November, 1973, in keeping with the national fuel conservation program, former SIU President David R. Derge ordered the University's thermostats set at 68 degrees and lighting reduced to lowest possible levels. Less than three years later these measures are slowly being forgotten.

According to Harrell Lerch, superintendent of maintenance at SIU's physical plant, the demand for higher readjustment of thermostats has been so great, he and utility officials decided to reset the University's thermostats at higher temperatures.

In 1973, thermostats were lowered to 68 degrees during the winter. Prior to this time, thermostats were normally set at 72 or 73 degrees during the winter.

But now maintenance men are in the process of setting all University thermostats at 70 degrees.

At the beginning of each winter, maintenance men readjust the thermostats from their summer settings of 78 degrees to the winter setting of 68 degrees. But because of the numerous requests in past winters to change thermostats settings to a higher temperature, maintenance and utility officials decided it would be better to change all winter thermostat settings to 70 degrees.

They hope this will eliminate the special trips during the winter, which they claim are very expensive.

Thomas Ingram, superintendent of utilities, said 68 degrees is "just a little abnormally uncomfortable." Ingram went on to say it's impossible to please everyone. But he added that 70 degrees is a fairly optimum temperature. Comfortable for most people, but still not wasteful of fuel resources.

Ingram added that there's always a kind of attitude that says "let the other guy conserve the energy."

Another energy-saving endeavor was the reduction of lighting to a minimum level in hallways and offices.

In 1973, minimum lighting levels for offices and hallways was established. Maintenance men then went to the offices and reduced the lighting level, if necessary, to the minimum level. These levels were established using light meters.

But, maintenance officials say that in many of the offices where they reduced the lighting, the lighting was later returned to its original level by office workers.

Harrell Lerch said his department is planning to survey the lighting facilities around the campus in order to see "how much (lighting) has been turned back on."

Liquor authority hears local pleas

The Illinois Liquor Control Commission (ILCC) will hear the liquor license suspension appeals of five Carbondale liquor store owners on Nov. 22, a spokesperson for the ILCC said Thursday.

The five liquor store owners, W. Stephen, Thomas and Philip Hoffmann and Robert and Thomas Palmier received liquor license suspensions which were to have taken affect Aug. 2. The pending appeal has allowed the stores to remain open.

W. Stephen and Thomas Hoffmann own Eastgate Liquor Mart, Philip Hoffmann owns ABC Liquor Store and the Palmiers own Leo's Westown Liquor Mart. The appeal will be heard at 10 a.m. in Room D 1 of the State Office Building in Springfield.

Benefit to help six arrested in drug bust

Friends of four of the six defendants arrested in a drug bust that netted 300 pounds of marijuana are having a benefit this Halloween to help pay for legal fees.

David Potter, an SIU student who is one of the defendants, said that lawyer's fees to date for the four are $5,100.

Arrested in the raid, which took place Oct. 2, were Elaine Shelton, 26, Rt. 3 Carbondale, Charles Smith Jr., 23, from West Frankfort, David Potter, 24, Rt. 2 Carbondale, and Al Parker, 26, Rt. 3 Carbondale. All were charged with possession of more than 500 grams of marijuana.

Also arrested were Robert Johnson, 28, and Jeffrey Bales, 23, both of Lakewood Park, Rt. 2, Carbondale.

Potter said the benefit will be held Sunday, Oct. 31, from 4 p.m. to midnight at Fred's Little Egypt Dance Barn located 1/4 mile east of the Cambria and Carverville Road intersection.

A prize will be given for the best costume, but those not in costume are also welcome. There will be a $2 donation at the door, and beer will be 25 cents, Potter said.

Members of Big Twist and the Mellow Fellows, Rolls Hardly, Highway Dogs, Jim Bruno, and other Carbondale musicians have donated their services to entertain at the benefit, Potter said.

Does drink cause damage to ears?

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Warning: a University of Utah professor of audiology has determined that drinking may be hazardous to your ears.

Martin Robinette said results of a six-week study he conducted at Wayne State University show the stapedius muscle of the middle ear, which normally contracts to protect the eardrum from loud noises, doesn't operate as well when a person is tipsy.

In the sessions of the study where alcohol was used, subjects suffered a greater amount of temporary damage to hearing ability, Robinette said.

CUMULATIVE VOTING

Illinois is unique. Illinois is the only state which uses this method to select the important office of State Representative. Under this system, you are allowed to cast 3, 1½, or 1 vote(s) for the candidate(s) of your choice. If you vote for three candidates, each will receive 1 vote. Should you decide to vote for 2 candidates, each of them will get 1½ votes. (By punching your party preference each of that party's candidates receives 1½ votes.) If you feel one candidate makes more sense than the others you may punch only his name and he will receive 3 votes (i.e. Punch No. 4, Democrat, and then No. 101, Vincent Birchler would get three votes).

JACKSON COUNTY PUNCHCARD SYSTEM

There are several methods of voting.

If you have a party preference, punch the space next to the party's name on page 1 of your ballot (i.e. Democratic, is punch No. 4)

Candidates who are not members of the political party which you punched on page 1, can still be voted for. Simply punch the space next to their name.

If you don't prefer either party, you must punch each candidate separately on the entire 11 pages of the ballot.

VINCE MAKES SENSE

The Illinois House of Representative controls everyone's educational future in Illinois. It is the race which will have the greatest IMPACT on you for the next two years.

If you oppose: Tuition increases, unfair utility rate increases in which you have no voice, special interest legislation which benefits the few at the cost of us all - then punch No. 101 Vincent Birchler

If you support: adequate spending for all levels of education; an "open door" legislature; public interest legislation - then vote for the man who has made a career out of public service to education in Illinois - Punch No. 101

School mock election results withheld for fear of 'influence'

By Charles Chamberlain
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—The influence high school mock elections may have on voting in the general election Nov. 2 is being taken so seriously in Illinois that a lid has been put on announcing results, it was learned Thursday.

Many high schools held mock elections this week, using ballots provided in kits distributed by the state board of elections and the state board of education.

Included in the kit is a letter "to the teacher" signed by Franklin J. Lunding Jr., chairman of the state board of elections, and Joseph M. Cronin, state superintendent of education.

They said, "We strongly recommend that you conduct the mock elections on Nov. 2, 1976, the day of the general election. For obvious reasons, we advise that you do not release the results of your mock election until after the closing of the polls on the day of the general election, Nov. 2."

Ronald D. Michaelson, executive director of the state board of elections, was asked by The Associated Press what was meant by "obvious reasons."

"We don't think it is particularly helpful for the schools to release the results before Nov. 2," he said. "Candidates in the past have complained about it."

There is a long history of this. We see no purpose in alienating candidates. Our purpose is vote education for the students."

Michaelson said results of mock elections in high schools could create "a bandwagon psychology."

"For instance," said Michaelson,

"a school may be in a particular area where a candidate is not doing well and results of the mock election show that his opponent is running far ahead. People may be inclined to jump on the bandwagon. Maybe, this is valid and maybe not."

Lunding was quoted as saying the same thing in a different way. "We don't want to have to deal with the screams and yells from the candidates who are defeated in the student elections."

At least one school, however, released results of its balloting Thursday at Griffin of Springfield.

Paper ballots were used at Griffin and the results were easily tabulated, showing President Ford defeating Jimmy Carter 361 to 228. But in Kane County a new mock election wrinkle appeared and threatened to blow off the lid.

Poker-playing robots shown, future era told

By Cheryl Debes

Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—Short, squat and ugly, he has a rotten sense of bluff but can still play an unbeatable hand of poker.

More importantly, this fat man may soon be replacing semiskilled laborers by the thousands.

Series 10, so-called, is an example of a third-generation robot—18 inches high, 6 feet in diameter and complete with "sight, sensors and two arms that have fingers, grippers, wrist movement, and elbow movement," says Bernard Sallot, executive director of the Robot Institute of America.

A relatively simple model, the robot has been demonstrating its ability to sort a deck of cards this week at the first North American Industrial Robot Conference.

Its counterparts, however, soon will replace semiskilled labor in thousands, perhaps hundreds of thousands, of factory jobs, Sallot said in an interview.

"In less than a decade, robots will be a common, household manufacturing term," said Sallot, who predicts the robot industry's sales will increase from $18 million this year to as much as $50 million in 1977.

Once found only in the annals of science fiction, real robots have progressed rapidly since the early 1960s when a handful of visionary inventors determined to create a mechanical man.

In the United States, some 6,000 industrial robots perform such tasks as heavy lifting, welding, diecasting and paint-spraying in auto and electrical industries and other smaller businesses.

"And that figure is rapidly becoming academic. There's a tremendous backlog of orders" for the robots that cost from a few thousand dollars to more than $100,000, Sallot said.

Abroad, especially in countries such as Japan and Sweden, governments have funded robot research.

Chicago counselors attending supportive programs session

By Joan Pearman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Twenty counselors from Chicago's inner city high schools are coming to SIU this weekend to sample the University's academic and recreational programs.

Harvey Welch, dean of Student Life, said Wednesday the University is "concerned about SIU's image with education leaders in the Chicago area." The Chicago Counselors' Workshop to be held in Carbondale this weekend will show the counselors "our programs and our commitment to all of our students," he said.

The workshop sponsored by the Office of Academic Affairs and the Office of Student Affairs will include group discussion of programs offered by the University. Welch said. Representatives from student affairs, student work and financial assistance, career planning and placement and university housing will address the counselors.

Welch said SIU President Warren Brandt, Frank Horton, vice president for academic affairs and research and Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs will speak to the counselors at a luncheon in Trueblood Hall on Friday.

An open reception will be held on Saturday from 1:00 to 3:45 p.m. in the Eastmore Room of Trueblood Hall, Welch said. Members of the Black Affairs Council, the Black Togetherness Organization, the University's faculty and staff and student and community leaders will be on hand to talk to anyone who wants to attend.

Welch, who is also project supervisor for the workshop, said he thinks the "University's credibility has been questioned up North." He said he feels the counselors are worried about the programs and the academic assistance the University offers its students. He added that the workshop should dispel any concerns the counselors might have about SIU's image and credibility.

Jerre C. Pfaff, associate director of admissions & records, agreed with Welch that the educators in inner city schools are concerned about the University's commitment to its students.

"There are ill feelings on the part of the counselors toward SIU that the University is not providing enough Special Supportive Programs for its students," Pfaff said Wednesday. Special Supportive Programs offer academic assistance to students who are culturally or economically disadvantaged.

Pfaff said SIU has not been able to provide extensive academic assistance programs for students in the Special Supportive Program because the University has not been given any federal funding.

The supportive services SIU has offered in the past were funded from state money, Pfaff said. "However, through the efforts of Seymour Bryson, assistant professor in the Rehabilitation Institute, the University was recently awarded a $75,000 grant for the Special Supportive Programs, Pfaff said.

Partee gives reasons behind his candidacy

By Mike Robinson
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—There is no brass plaque over the bed in the Georgia governor's mansion saying "Cecil A. Partee slept here." But Partee was there.

When then-Gov. Jimmy Carter summoned Partee in 1974 to the mansion so recently abandoned by Lester Maddox, there were those who saw it as a symbolic act, Carter being hungry for national office but carrying the southern stigma. Partee being the first black president of the Illinois Senate.

"By absolute happenstance," Partee says, "it was the day that he had announced his candidacy for the presidency."

Partee is accustomed to the symbolic trappings of politics. In fact, there is a certain symbolic ambiguity about his current candidacy for attorney general of Illinois.

"I do want to be attorney general of this state," the Democratic senator from Chicago's South Side insisted one day last week while chatting with a reporter in his office.

"You believe me when I tell you. A lot of people say, well, he wants a judgeship. If I wanted a judgeship I could have been a judge 10 years ago."

There is no shortage of Illinois politicians who think Partee agreed to make the race because he was feeling pressure in the senate from Mayor Richard J. Daley—that he figured on carrying the Democratic banner against incumbent Republican William J. Scott with no illusion that he could win, but only in hope of a judgeship later.

Such a move would make sense from the mayor's standpoint, if he had no particular desire to topple Scott. Regular Democrats have been slipping in the once tractable South Side wards, and a black on the slate might be just the tonic.

But the problem of getting elected attorney general remains. The Chicago Sun-Times Straw Poll shows Scott leading Partee statewide, 66.3 per cent to 34.7 per cent.

"I think certainly that between now and the election we shall see a very substantial difference."

MARIJUANA LAWS

"I support legislation drafted by the Illinois Bar Assn. which would eliminate the criminal arrest and imprisonment of marijuana smokers. It would apply civil, not criminal fines to discourage marijuana smoking.

Criminal arrests have not deterred marijuana smoking. They tie up our police and courts with hundreds of thousands of minor arrests. Families of the offenders suffer anguish far beyond the seriousness of the offense.

Too many young people have turned against our police and our American system because of criminal arrests for marijuana possession. They have lost jobs, paid heavy legal defense fees and acquired a criminal record just for processing marijuana.

Decriminalization is supported by both our U.S. Senators, by the American Public Health Assn., the American Medical Assn., the American Medical Assn. governing board and by many other authorities and leading newspapers. Don't mistake me as being for marijuana. I oppose its use strongly. But I think we can discourage its use more effectively by using civil fines for possession and keeping tough criminal penalties for the pushers who make money selling it."

Vitamin C doesn't cure colds, only helps noses, study shows

By Daniel Q. Haase
Associated Press Writer
BOSTON (AP)—Researchers who said two years ago Vitamin C might relieve the common cold now conclude the drug does not significantly ease symptoms of the sniffles.

The team of doctors, among the first to confirm the relieving powers of the vitamin, say now their earlier assertions were wrong.

"We do not believe that Vitamin C has widespread usefulness as a cold remedy," the doctors concluded.

The new study was directed by Dr. John F. Coulehan at the University of Pittsburgh Medical School.

The virtues of Vitamin C have been debated since Nobel laureate Linus Pauling said in 1970 that people who took large daily doses of the drug would have fewer colds. He also said the colds they did get would be less severe.

To test the theory, Coulehan and his associates experimented with students at a Navajo boarding school in Arizona. They concluded in 1974 that students who took Vitamin C had milder colds.

"Our study got a lot of publicity and was used to argue that Vitamin C was beneficial," Coulehan said in an interview. "Because of this, we went into a second study that was longer and more controlled."

The second time, the doctors watched the health of 868 Navajo children at schools in Steamboat and Lower Greasewood, Ariz. Half took Vitamin C and the rest got fake pills. Over five months, the number and length of colds were almost identical between the two groups, the doctors said.

"Our important finding was negative," Coulehan said. "We were unable to demonstrate significant benefits of Vitamin C."

Coulehan noted some other researchers are still reporting mild benefits to cold victims from Vitamin C. He said scientists theorize that in some cases the vitamin has an effect on the body similar to an anti-histamine.

But he said that even if Vitamin C does help dry up runny noses, this is not enough reason to take large quantities of the drug.

"I don't think there is any evidence to recommend Vitamin C in large doses when a person has a cold," Coulehan said. "There are other antihistamines available."

Halloween dance by SIU Vets Club set for Saturday

The SIU Veterans Club will hold its third annual Halloween Costume Dance from 7:30 to 2 a.m. Saturday at the Bench in Murphysboro.

Richard Myers, social coordinator of the club, said live music at the dance will be provided by the rock band Ricochet.

Myers also said a raffle will be held during the dance to give away a Panasonic portable television. Chances will be sold for a dollar. There is no limit on the amount bought.

Myers said admission is open to all members and non-members. Admission price for members is 50 cents and $1.50 for non-members.

Beer will be sold for ten cents. Guests can buy tickets and use these for beer. Ticket stubs will be saved and used at the end of the night for a drawing. Mixed drinks will be sold for 50 cents on a similar drawing basis.

A best costume contest will also be held. Costumes will be judged on originality, creativity, and method of execution.

Parley on coalition set by Gay Peoples' Union

By Lydia Gabriel
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A blend of workshops and parties will set off the Gay People's Conference scheduled for Friday through Sunday.

Sponsored by the SIU Gay Peoples' Union (GPU) and Student Activities, the main purpose of the conference is to establish a Gay Peoples' Coalition, said Brad Bentcover, member of the GPU steering committee.

"A coalition would set up a network of communication and cooperation between gay organizations, gay people, and interested people in the Midwest," said Bentcover, a senior in speech. "The conference is also a chance to get to know people, to be hospitable to people coming from other towns."

The conference is the first of its kind in the Midwest, Bentcover said. "It should help us to grow in strength politically and socially."

Nine workshops are scheduled for Saturday morning. From 9 a.m. to noon, workshops will be held on topics ranging from "sex role modeling" to "a new look at androgyny," Bentcover said.

From 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Saturday, an organizational meeting will be held for officials. Bentcover said, representatives and any interested people for the purpose of establishing the coalition.

Harris Rubin, associate professor in the School of Medicine, will talk on "Gay in a Straight Society" at 1 p.m. on Saturday, he said.

Organizational meetings will also be held on Sunday, Bentcover said.

Other events scheduled for the conference include a Friday night party, a picnic at Giant City State Park on Saturday afternoon and a masquerade ball at the New Life Center beginning at 10:30 p.m. Saturday, he said.

The cost of registration for the conference is $5. Admission to the masquerade dance is $2 for anyone who wishes to attend but who has not registered for the conference, he said.

"Straight people are welcomed and encouraged to come to the dance or conference," Bentcover said.

Overweight persons offered lifestyle modification planning

A year-long weight control program, with an emphasis on the development of new life styles, will be offered by Prevention Programs beginning Monday.

Jim Perkins, coordinator of Prevention Programs, a division of Health Service, stressed that fad diets will not be used. He said the program is geared toward helping people slowly achieve their desired weight and to maintain it.

Three groups will start meeting next week, and will continue until the end of spring semester, Perkins said. The times and locations are: noon to 1 p.m. Mondays in Student Center Activity Room A; 4 p.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays in Activity Room A and 7:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Tuesdays in the Kaskaskia Room in the Student Center.

The program is open to students, faculty and staff, Perkins said. No advance registration is necessary.

Jane Jereb, graduate student in behavior modification, is the coordinator of the program, Perkins said. The group members will initially develop individual weight-loss schedules, Perkins said. After dieting has begun, the groups will support each other through interaction and reinforcement.

Ford-Carter lead followed, many candidates are debating

By The Associated Press

The Ford-Carter campaign debates have prompted an increased number of similar confrontations at the local level this year, with gubernatorial and congressional candidates squaring off for frequent broadcast sessions.

Officials in a few states report that debates are a traditional part of political campaigns. But an Associated Press spot check shows that there was an upsurge of interest this year because of the first presidential debates in 16 years.

The local debates — some carried live and others relayed by delayed telecast — prompted fewer polls and analyses than the presidential ones. There was no measure of their impact available, although in a few cases television officials said viewer reaction was minimal.

Stan Cramer, public affairs director of KOMO-TV in Kansas City, said: "The real factor in the increased number of debates is the willingness of the candidates to debate this year. That is where the road block is usually thrown."

At the same time, Cramer said, viewers seem apathetic.

"My feeling is that they don't really care," he said. "I think the people are still making their choices on nonissues. I don't think the public understands the real issues in many of the races."

The format of the debates has varied from state to state. Candidates in Wyoming, Washington, North Carolina, New Hampshire, Florida, Delaware and Connecticut met in confrontations generally paralleling the Ford-Carter sessions, with questions from a panel of reporters and a chance for each candidate to reply to his opponent's answers.

Elsewhere, the debates were closer to joint news conferences — with different questions to each candidate.

The presidential debates did not include the minor party candidates. Eugene J. McCarthy, running as an independent, lost a bid for equal time. Several state confrontations, in contrast, included as many as eight candidates for a single office and some politicians said the size of the field diluted the impact.

In Wisconsin, for example, Democratic incumbent William Proxmire and Republican challenger Stanley York were joined by Michael McSurin, Labor party; William Hart, Democratic Socialist; Robert Norlander, Socialist Labor; and Robert Schwartz, Socialist Workers.

York said that because of the array of candidates "Proxmire and I ended up defending the free enterprise system from the Socialists rather than delineating the differences between the two major candidates."

There have been four broadcast debates in Washington State, where Dixy Lee Ray, a Democrat and former chairwoman of the Atomic Energy Commission, and Republican John Spellman are seeking the governorship. The first three sessions were patterned after the presidential debates; the fourth was a head-on confrontation, with the candidates asking each other the questions.

Spokesmen for both candidates said the debates were helpful. Most observers agreed that the fourth session was the most interesting. "With all deference to the members of the press who ask good questions, I think my opponent asks better ones," said Spellman.

What about the public reaction? "We had people calling saying we were carrying too much about politics and others saying they really appreciated the opportunity to watch the candidates in action," reported the manager of one television station.

The debate among the senatorial candidates in Massachusetts will have tough competition. It's scheduled for 3 p.m. on Sunday, opposite the New England Patriots-Miami Dolphins football game.

The debate — which will be rebroadcast later — is sponsored by WTEV in New Bedford with a panel of three reporters asking questions of the incumbent, U.S. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, and Republican Michael Robertson, U.S. Labor party candidate H. Graham Lowry and Socialist Workers nominee Carol Henderson Evans.

Robertson tried to get Kennedy to agree to a one-to-one debate, but the senator refused.

U.S. Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., and his Republican opponent, Dr. John Grady, met twice in debates patterned after the presidential ones. Chiles asked after the first debate for a change in format to allow the candidates to question each other. The sponsors refused.

Circuit court judge hopefuls push former views in debate

By Steve Bauman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

William Ridgeway, Republican candidate for circuit court judge, spent much of the time in his debate Thursday with Democrat Bill Green defending his recently published views on the handling of rape cases.

Ridgeway, the Republican candidate, was quoted in a story appearing Tuesday in the Daily Egyptian as saying, "In a rape case, the jury is not likely to understand why the woman didn't move and avoid the rape, even if the attacker is a muscular man. It's the on old saying, 'Can't thread a moving needle.'"

Ridgeway defended his statement by saying that in a rape case, the defense will make a similar would be relevant in cases where the defense alleges the defendant and victim had a previous relationship.

Both candidates agreed that the judge has little influence over reforms in the corrections field. Green said, "I believe it is impossible to rehabilitate someone in prison."

Ridgeway said that although the corrections systems needs to be improved, prisons are necessary, because "some people just will not obey the law...they must be kept out of circulation."

Ridgeway said criminal suspects' rights were carried too far in the U.S. Supreme Court ruling in the Miranda case. The most noted aspect of the Miranda decision is the requirement that police officers must inform a person arrested that he has the right to remain silent and the right to an attorney while being questioned.

Green said the Court decision did not go too far, but said it was wrong to make a rule of law out of just one Court Decision.

CAMPAIGN 76

accusations if the defense is based on consent and a weapon was not used.

The Republican candidate told the group of about 80 law students that a rape case will be "the hardest case you'll ever fight in court."

During the exchange with the audience, Ridgeway's Democratic opponent, Bill Green, remained silent.

Under the law, the judge has the option of instructing the jury that rape is easily charged, but hard to prove and even harder to disprove.

Green said he would not give such instructions to a jury. Ridgeway said he might issue such instructions if he thought the case warranted it. He would not give a hypothetical case to illustrate his point.

Both candidates said they would use the judge to limit the discussion of the alleged rape victim's previous sexual activities. Both agreed that prior sexual activity

Libertarian candidate favors budget cuts for state schools

By Robert Wren
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU officials attempting to get a legislative override on Gov. Walker's $4 million budget cut would be hard-pressed to deal with F. Joseph McCaffrey, Libertarian Party candidate for Illinois governor, should he be elected.

McCaffrey, in Carbondale for a series of media interviews, advocates a $49 million budget cut for all state-supported institutions, which would effectively render SIU and all other state schools private institutions.

Overall, the Libertarian philosophy espoused by McCaffrey, a 33-year-old transplanted New Yorker, calls for the government to "get out

"then it should be a decision made by the child and his parents, not the government." He added that a factor barring a child from getting a job is the minimum wage law, now set at $2.30 an hour.

"If someone is willing to work pushing a broom, and a businessman can only afford to pay him $2.00 an hour, he can't be hired. This contributes to unemployment.

Defending his proposal to turn higher education into an entirely private funded operation, he said that individual tuition would be considerably higher, but in the long run would be less expensive.

"A person would only have to pay for an education as the need arises, McCaffrey said, not through paying taxes for someone else's education. He feels that the forced payment of taxes borders on the criminal, and that those attending state-supported institutions are accessories to theft.

With the abolition of the state income tax, and eventually the sales tax, McCaffrey said state agencies would be phased out, along with welfare as we now know it.

He said the forcible commitment of "nutty people" to state mental institutions merely produces more of them. He said he recognizes the need to sequester the criminally insane by way of police departments and the judiciary, which is the only tangible forms of government Libertarians advocate keeping.

Formal welfare would be phased out because of increased employment, he said. Those who for one reason or another remained indigent "would be handled by private charities which would remain solvent by private contributions, McCaffrey said.

This is in line with the Libertarian philosophy of volunteerism, based on a Jeffersonian principle of government. "He who governs least governs best," he said.

McCaffrey, in candidly conceding defeat in his gubernatorial contest, at least for this election year, is hoping for five per cent of the total vote. This would enable the Libertarian slate to appear on the 1978 ballot without going again through the process of nominating petitions.

ICE CREAM, MAYBE

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Ice cream and sandwiches, maybe? Judging from the store sign, the proprietor of the restaurant appeared to be in doubt.

Actually, the neon sign had said, "Mayberry," but the "rry" portion burned out recently, leaving the "maybe" in effect.

Manager Cathy Burns called up a crew of workmen to restore the missing letters.

of people's lives." As governor, he said, one of his first acts would be to abolish the state income tax, thus creating a favorable business climate and a decrease in unemployment.

As it stands now, he said, restrictive tax structures are regulatory agencies driving business out of Illinois down to the "sunbelt" states, because they have lower taxes and fewer restrictive regulations.

He attacked public education as a whole in Illinois, saying that its only accomplishment is "producing functional illiterates." He said the divestiture of state involvement in education would be a gradual process.

With the savings realized by the abolition of the state income tax and the elimination of state expenditures in public education, taxpayers could send their children to parochial or private schools, which McCaffrey said do a consistently better job of education.

He is also against laws forcing school attendance.

"If a kid 12, 14 or 16 years old wants to quit school and get a job," McCaffrey said in citing his opposition to current child labor laws,

U.S. Steel to comply to clean air requirements

By David Tabolt

Associated Press Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP)—U.S. Steel Corp. has agreed to clean up the air around the world's largest coke-producing plant by 1983 but said that such a move could cost local jobs.

The proposed settlement to bring the nearby Clairton Coke Works into compliance with local, state and federal clean air standards could cost the steel producer up to $500 million, but a spokesman said no promise had been made to actually spend that much.

"There is no commitment to spend X number of dollars," the spokesman said.

But Allegheny County President Judge Henry Ellenbogen said that by his interpretation, "the agreement means that the U.S. Steel Corp. is committed to spend $600 million to modernize its Clairton Coke Works and to reduce emissions and eventually meet the air quality standards.

Ellenbogen presided over negotiations leading to the proposed settlement. It sets deadlines for the company to install new coke ovens or rehabilitate those currently in use. It does not, however, rule out the possibility that U.S. Steel could reduce production at the plant in order to meet air quality standards.

"We have agreed to comply through three basic ways—either rebuild, build new or phase some things out," the company spokesman said. There are currently 20 coke oven batteries at Clairton. The agreement calls for construction of three superbatteries and rehabilitation or retirement of those now in use.

Company officials said about $90 million would be used for pollution controls and more—up to $510 million—would be spent for new equipment.

Graduate Student Council lets funds,urges lower ticket costs

Business at the Graduate Student Council (GSC) meeting Wednesday night consisted mostly of allocating money to various groups.

The Department of Administration of Justice will receive $250 to bring Anthony M. Platt to SIU to speak. Platt, a professor of criminology at the University of California at Berkeley, will discuss an historical analysis of penology in California: an examination of certain liberal reforms.

The council gave $360 for 18 students from Rehabilitation Behavior Modification to attend a convention.

The English Graduate Organization received $240 for 20 students to attend the Annual Midwestern Modern Language Association Convention.

A resolution was passed resolving to "bring pressure on the administrators" responsible for ticket price policies to entitle students' dependents to receive student rate tickets for University events. Student's spouses receive student rates but other dependents do not.

The council also discussed the possibility of hiring a researcher to investigate professional liability insurance for graduate assistants. The matter was sent to the fee allocation board for further consideration.

Blaze demolishes student's trailer

By Pete Retzbach
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A trailer at 608 N. Oakland St. was completely destroyed by fire, the Carbondale Fire Department said Thursday.

The occupant, Steve Hinze, 22, a senior in business administration, was gone at the time of the fire Wednesday night. Fire department officials estimated damage at $2,400.

Hinze said Thursday everything he owned was lost in the fire. Some of his clothes and stereo equipment may be salvaged, but they will "need work" before they can be used again, he said.

The blaze started at about 11 p.m. while Hinze was at the Elvis Presley concert. According to fire department reports, the fire department was called at 11:10 p.m.

8,000 CREDIT MILES
CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Addressograph-Multigraph Corp. says it manufactures 150 million plastic credit cards a year. This is enough to reach from New York to Calcutta, almost 8,000 miles, if laid end to end.

The fire began in an electric space heater, spread to a wall and eventually to the rest of the trailer, fire department reports said.

Charles Sollars, a senior in engineering, said he saw the flames and went to the trailer to investigate. Sollars, who lives near Hinze, said he opened the door to see if anyone was inside or if anything valuable could be saved. "I didn't get a chance to do either," Sollars said.

Hinze said he has received numerous offers for a place to stay. He said he will be living in his old fraternity house until he makes up his mind on what to do.

Hinze said he is unsure of his plans for the rest of the semester.

Scholar program committee looks nationwide for director

By Bob Morely
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

All applicants for the position of director of the President's Scholars have been rejected.

All three candidates were found to be unacceptable, Clifford Harper, dean of general academic programs, said Wednesday. He said the search committee will begin a nationwide search for a new director.

In an informal meeting held Wednesday in the lounge of Smith Hall, Harper also announced plans for a permanent advisory committee to help guide the program. Harper asked that students in the program attend a meeting Nov. 11 with four suggestions for student representatives on the committee.

Pumpkin harvest peaks, cannery sees good year

By William Prater
Associated Press Writer

MORTON, Ill. (AP)—The backyard pumpkin grower usually can have all the jack-o-lanterns he wants by digging a small hole and dropping in a few seeds. In a few months crawling green vines will threaten the rest of his yard.

A professional pumpkin grower, however, disdains such simple methods.

Pumpkins grow well in most places, but the farmland around Morton, particularly the sandy, irrigated soil of the Illinois River bottoms in Mason County, is ideal.

Libby, McNeill & Libby, which operates the world's largest pumpkin cannery, has about 4,000 acres of this prime pumpkin property under contract.

The farmer supplies the ground and fertilizer and does the planting, but Libby owns the seeds and does the harvesting to assure uniform quality of its pie fillings.

The cannery has been in Morton since 1925, first operated by Dickinson & Son, Inc., "which brought the original pumpkin seed and four or five suggestions for faculty representatives, preferably from different academic departments.

In a discussion of the Scholar's program, some students said they would like to have a more clearly defined or structured program. Other students want expanded course descriptions, others want classes scheduled earlier in the day, instead of the late afternoon as they now tend to be.

Harper replied that Scholar's program really has no power. "By and large we can't control, we can only hope. The departments give us what they want to give us."

Harper explained that President Scholar courses are "sort of volunteer work on the teacher's part, unless the course is cross-listed. Basically it's an overload for the teacher."

If the courses were cross-listed, they would appear in catalogs under both the President's Scholar program and under the individual department's listing. In the present setup, teachers volunteer their time to teach Scholar courses, with no financial reward. Under cross-listing, if a teacher wanted to teach a Scholar's course, it could be counted toward his normal teaching load.

Harper was also critical of the University's attitude toward the honors program. "We've got to get the University and the faculty involved in the honors program. If they're going to say we have a University-wide honors program, then they've got to get involved."

Statehouse election puts Democrat control to test

By Skip Wollenberg
Associated Press Writer

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Republicans are expected to increase their strength in the Illinois House after Tuesday's election, but Democrats will probably retain majority control.

Democrats took 101 to 76 control of the House in the 1974 election. Republicans had held a majority in the 177-member body during the previous eight years.

But while strategists from both parties say the 25-vote gap will be cut, there is a difference of opinion

Republicans in two Chicago districts this time.

Republicans say they are "good bets" to make gains in three downstate districts—the 35th in northwestern Illinois, the 50th including Springfield and the 52nd including Champaign—which are currently represented by two Democrats and one Republican.

Democrats Richard Mulcahey, a Durand high school teacher, and incumbent Robert Brinkmeier of Freeport, now completing his fifth term, both won seats from the 35th District in 1974.

Republicans say that was the first

CAMPAIGN 76

on how heavy the Democratic losses will be.

Republicans think they can cut the number of Democrats to 91 while Democrats believe they will have 93 to 95 members in the 1977-78 General Assembly session.

A Republican optimist, Rep. William Walsh of LaGrange Park, says he thinks Republicans can regain control of the House.

"We lost the governor's race in 1972 and kept control of the House. We are going to win the governorship this year, and there isn't any reason we can't win a majority of House seats," he said.

A unique cumulative voting procedure is used to elect state representatives.

Voters are given three votes to spend on the House elections, and can give them all to one candidate or split them evenly among two or three persons.

In most districts, parties run only two candidates.

But Democrats violated this unwritten rule two years ago and won two seats which they are already conceding to the time two Democrats had been elected to represent the district in nearly four decades and that the Watergate backlash was to blame. Mulcahey is vulnerable, they say.

Two-term Harlan Rigney of Freeport is being counted upon to bring Harold Adams, the former chairman of the Ogle County Board of Supervisors with him to the House.

Bitter feelings linger in the 50th District where the primary election produced Democratic nominees David Robinson and Douglas Kane, both of Springfield.

ENERGY CUT

NEW YORK (AP)—Mobil Oil Corp. reports it has reduced energy consumption in its American refineries by 15 per cent in the past four years.

In 1975, according to Allen E. Murray, president of Mobil's U.S. Marketing and Refining Division, the company saved 2.5 million barrels of crude oil, a saving of 8.7 per cent from 1974.

Deceased Hawaiian governor leaves Pearl Harbor tapes

By Holly Kurtz
Associated Press Writer
HONOLULU (AP)—In memoirs recorded before his death, former Gov. John A. Burns said that he was warned of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor a week before the actual attack on Dec. 7, 1941.

The memoirs are contained in 11 just-released tapes Burns made as part of a University of Hawaii oral history project. He discussed Pearl Harbor in January 1975, three months before his death.

Burns said that Robert L. Shivers, who was in charge of the FBI's Honolulu bureau, called him into his office in early December 1941. At the time, Burns was a 32-year-old Honolulu police captain in charge of an intelligence unit.

Burns described the meeting: "Close the doors," Shivers said. "I'm not telling my men this but I'm telling you. We're going to be attacked before the week is out."

"And the guy had tears in his eyes," said Burns, whose tapes were presented to the University of Hawaii library Thursday.

Under Shivers' instructions Burns gathered his four men, and without giving a reason he told them to ask about 15 acquaintances per day if they had heard of any unusual upcoming events. His men found no signs of nervousness in the community, until the night of December 6th.

"We did get some monkeyshine telephone call from the FBI monitoring the Japanese consulate," Burns said in the tapes. "The FBI took it up with the military folks but..."

Burns said he did not ask Shivers, who died in 1950, about the source of the attack warning. But Burns speculated that the source was FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, who was either informed by British intelligence officers or by his own sources in Washington who had broken the Japanese code

CCHS gridders have title shot

The South Seven football conference just won't let Carbondale die in peace.

Every time Head Coach Tom O'Boyle thinks his Terriers are out of the race for the league crown, some team gets knocked off and suddenly Carbondale is right back in the thick of things.

Last Friday night West Frankfort upset Herrin 20-14 — O'Boyle had predicted Herrin to win by three touchdowns — while Carbondale held on against Harrisburg 18-13. Considering Benton's 3-0 win over Mount Vernon, no less than five of the eight South Seven teams still have a shot at the title.

Frankfort and Benton are 3-1, while Herrin, Harrisburg and Carbondale each have only two losses. Frankfort and Benton, however, each have three conference games remaining — including one against each other — while the other scores have no more than two.

Carbondale travels to Benton Friday night to take on the co-leader in the standings.

"A lot of questions about the conference race will be answered this weekend," O'Boyle said. "Essentially, this will eliminate either us or Benton."

Harrisburg goes to Frankfort Friday, and should Harrisburg and Carbondale both win, five teams would be tied for first place seven weeks into the season.

Herrin plays nonconference Johnston City this weekend, and would remain at 4-2.

Concerning Friday's game at Benton, O'Boyle said, "I'd rather play anybody other than Kolisek, Adams, and Dillon." Frank Kolisek is Benton's quarterback, Skip Dillon is the middle linebacker, and Mike Adams is a running back-punter-kicker.

"They are the quickest team in the South," O'Boyle said. "They'll probably beat us by two touchdowns, unless something changes." The "something" O'Boyle referred to was the apparent lack of killer instinct exhibited by Carbondale this season.

Against Harrisburg, Carbondale jumped to an 18-0 lead during the first three quarters, but then gave up two late touchdowns to allow Harrisburg to creep within 18-13 before time ran out.

Senior David Blume was the Terrier hero, scoring two touchdowns, recovering a fumble, catching two passes for 66 yards, and sacking the quarterback twice.

Blume played almost the entire game, going both ways as offensive wingback and defensive end.

CCHS quarterback Tim Hawkins completed seven of thirteen passes for 122 yards.

More than just the conference championship is at stake in the South Seven. The league winner advances to the state high school football playoffs.

Senior Kim Wall of the men's gymnastics team takes his turn on the rings as he prepares for "The Battle of the Sexes" gymnastics meet at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the Arena. The men will face the women in each squad's first match of the season.

Gymnastic talents on display in 'The Battle of the Sexes'

By Dave Heun
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

When the men's and women's gymnastics teams square off in "The Battle of the Sexes," at 7:30 p.m. Friday night in the Arena, the fans will get their first look at the Saluki's individual stars.

For the women, Denise Didier should be the standout in the vaulting and uneven bar events. She has also made strong showings in the floor exercise in the past.

Senior Dianne Grayson is SIU's three time All-America and former National Champion in the balance beam event.

A freshman with high potential is Kim Paul, from Long Beach, Cali. Paul will be a real help to the floor exercise team, and will add depth to the balance beam and uneven bar events.

For the men's team, Steve Shepard and Scott McBroom make a team up in the floor exercise event.

Rick Adams and Tony Hanson have been strong performers on the pommel horse, while Kim Wall adds experience to the rings competition. Adams and McBroom also add depth to the vaulting team, led by Wall.

The women's team is a perennial powerhouse in gymnastics, and will be out to improve on a fourth place finish in the national tournament last season.

Coach Herb Vogel's teams have won 16 national titles, 10 of those titles being earned by SIU teams. The men's team is coming off a rebuilding season, and should make a real run at the NCAA championship.

Injuries, illness and other problems hampered the team last year. With a clean bill of health and another year of experience under the belts of some key performers, the team appears ready to bounce back.

All-Comers meet scheduled

The Saluki Fall All-Comers track meet is scheduled for Saturday afternoon at McAndrew Stadium.

Field events in the open meet begin at 1 p.m. with the pole vault and hammer throw. The javelin and long jump are set for 1:30 p.m. with the triple jump, shot put, discus throw and high jump to follow.

Running events begin with the women's mile at 1:45 p.m. and the men's mile at 2 p.m. Following will be the 60-yard high hurdles, 100-yard dash, 440 and 300-meter hurdles (men and women) 880, 3-mile and mile relay.

Entries for the meet will be accepted from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the stadium. There is no entry fee.

Meet director Bill Webb, assistant coach of the SIU men's track team, said that officials and helpers are needed for the meet.

Information is available from Webb at 453-5311.

Salukis travel to Terre Haute hoping to break ISU jinx

By Rick Korch
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

When the Salukis take the field against Indiana State Saturday in Terre Haute, Ind., they will be looking to defeat the Sycamores for the first time since 1989. ISU has beaten SIU five straight times since then.

"We haven't beat this team since these kids have been here," Coach Ray Dempsey said. "The kids really want to win this game."

A Saluki victory would give the team five wins, one less than in the last three years combined. Indiana State will be looking for its third win against four losses.

Indiana State runs the wishbone, and Dempsey said he is concerned about stopping them. "They like to run the option, and we've had problems with it all year."

Indiana State will be without its star running back Vincent Allen, an All-American choice last year, who injured his leg and will miss the whole season.

"His loss has hurt them, but they still have fine backs," Dempsey said. "(Mike) Sotak is a good running quarterback."

After losing two games in a row, Dempsey said the win against Northern Illinois has given the players a "tremendous attitude. They're practicing with confidence like winners do."

The first-year coach said the game against Northern Illinois was the best the team has played this year.

"They truly were good. In total efforts throughout the whole game, they were better than any other game," he said. "I just want them to improve a little percentage each week."

The lineup will stay basically the same, although the starting quarterback has yet to be named. Freshman Reggie Evans started last week, and looked "pretty good," Dempsey said. Evans reinjured his shoulder in the game, and if he doesn't start, junior Bob Collins, who started the first five games, will get the nod.

Linebacker Bob Dickey hurt his knee against Northern, and is doubtful for the game. He will be replaced by either Carlton Spain, Billy Hadfield or Rod Sherrill, who usually plays defensive tackle.

With his performance last week (nine tackles) Valdrewh Rodgers has won back his position at safety. He will be joined by Oyd Cardcock, Joe Hosman and Ron Geels in the secondary.

Meeting set for IM playoffs

A flag football playoff meeting for representatives of teams compiling a .500 or better regular season record will be held in Room 119 of the Arena Monday, Nov. 1 at 4 p.m.

All teams are encouraged to verify their win-loss record with Jack May, graduate assistant in charge of scheduling, in the Office of Recreation and Intramurals prior to the scheduled drawing.

Coed volleyball tournament slated

A women's coed triple volleyball tournament has been scheduled for 2 p.m. Nov. 7 in Davies Gymnasium. Entries must be submitted by Wednesday in Room 205 of Davies Gym. A mandatory captain's meeting is scheduled for Thursday at 6:30 p.m. in Room 203, Davies Gym.

Up to five players per team can play, and teams of three (one man and two women, or two men and one woman) play at a time.

Cagers impressive in first team scrimmage

By Rick Korch
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

The "Georgia Gems," Mike Glenn and Corky Abrams, continued where they left off last year with hot shooting performances in Wednesday night's intrasquad basketball game played at McLeansboro High School.

In the first scrimmage of the year for the SIU team, the White squad beat the Maroons 78-69. The White team was the more experienced team because the Maroons had three freshmen and a junior college transfer player.

Abrams hit 11 of 13 shots in the game and also connected on five of 10 free throws for 27 points, which was surpassed only by Glenn's 28 points. The 6-3 All-America guard candidate hit 10 of 16 shots and nine of 11 free throws.

Other players who hit doubles figures were Gary Wilson (18), Al Williams (16), Richard Ford (13) and Barry

Smith (14). Smith, a 6-6 freshman from Eldorado, was the only freshman in doubles figures.

The White team was comprised of Tom Harris, Milt Huggins, Dan Kieszowski, Wilson, Corky Abrams and Williams, while the Maroons had Mark Winter, Jerry Kellum, Mel Hughlett, Revon Williams (Al's brother), Ford, Smith, Glenn and Wayne Abrams (Corky's brother).

Both teams had almost identical statistics in the game. Each squad took 49 shots, with the White team making 28, and the Maroons 27. In free throws, both teams hit about 60 per cent, and both teams pulled down 29 rebounds.

Wayne Abrams, a freshman guard, hit only three of nine shots, but looked impressive bringing the ball up the court. The Salukis have needed a point guard since Perry Hines graduated two years ago.

"We're a little ahead of last year," Coach Paul Lambert said after the game. "It really helped Wayne Abrams and Barry Smith playing with the more experienced players."

The game marked the team's first full court scrimmage.

"They're in pretty good shape for this time of year," Lambert said. "There were some excellent plays out there, and some not so good."

Lambert's assistant coaches, Herman Williams and George Lubelt, coached the teams while Lambert watched from the stands.

From watching the game, Lambert said he has "a pretty good idea where the offense and defense are now."

"I was encouraged with the scrimmage, but there's still a month to go (before the season starts). We haven't worked with our press offense and our full-court press defense yet."

But he added, "There's still a long way to go."

Six SIU runners in Nationals

Add Trish Grandis and Cindy Ruester to the list of women cross country runners which will represent SIU at the national meet in Madison, Wis. on Nov. 13.

In each girl's second try at reaching the qualifying time of 19 minutes, Ruester made it with four seconds to spare (18:56), but Grandis ran the second fastest time of the year for SIU with a time of 18:34.7. Jean Ohly, who already qualified for nationals, has run one second faster. Peggy Evans, Linda Snovak and Cathy Ciarello qualified in a time trial held Monday.

Ruester and Grandis ran their race at McAndrew Stadium Wednesday and made the cut off for submitting national times by three days. The last day to qualify is Saturday.

The team will travel to Southwest Missouri Saturday for the Ozark Invitational.

Hockey team to play four home matches

IM flag football: fun, but serious business

The late afternoon air will be filled with grunts and groans. There will be cursing, and probably fighting. There may even be injuries, mostly minor, but a few broken bones would surprise no one.

This will be the case next week, anyway, on the fields east of the Arena. No, the Saluki football team will not be playing there, nor will the SIU Rugby Club. The mini-wars that will be taking place there are also called the intramural flag football playoffs.

It is no secret that flag football is the roughest of any intramural sport. Some 102 teams entered into this year's quest for the University championship.

It is not as prestigious as the Super Bowl, Stanley Cup or World Series, but most of the participants, at least the ten top teams on campus, take the game very seriously.

The intensity with which the playoffs are performed brings out a style of rough play that can cause injuries and sometimes fights.

The guys who will be hearing an ear full no matter what happens, will be the men who throw the yellow flags, the referees.

The referees in flag football, like all other intramural activities, are student workers. They are not, by any means, professionals at their jobs. And they aren't expected to make the perfect calls all the time.

Al Lery, graduate assistant in charge of flag football, has told the referees to keep an eye open for unnecessary roughness during the playoffs.

"The refs will be calling those flagrant blocks, and will not allow a player to leave his feet when blocking or trying for the flag," Lery said.

"Flag football is a real restricted game. The rules are designed so people won't get hurt."

"The refs will be keeping it under control in the playoffs, they will not take any abuse," Lery added.

Sophomore Dan Kieszowski goes high for a rebound in Wednesday night's intrasquad basketball game in McLeansboro. The game marked the first time since practice began 1½ weeks ago that the team has

The SIU field hockey team will be home for two varsity and two junior varsity games Saturday. The varsity will play Western Illinois at 12:45 p.m. and Illinois State at 3:30 p.m.

The JV squad will face Western Illinois JV team at 8:45 a.m. and Illinois State's JV team at 2:15 p.m. All games will be played on the athletic field across from the new recreation building.

The varsity squad is having one of its most successful seasons ever. It is undefeated, winning nine of its 11 games, tying two, and allowing two goals for the season while scoring 36.

Goalie Peg O'Connell has had an excellent season and the offense has controlled the ball for the majority of the time the team has played, which helps the defense.

The offense has been supplied mainly by Helen Meyer, who has 13 goals and the SIU career record total of 44, and Diane Bednarzyk, who has scored six this season.

Rappin' Sports

By Dave Hein
Sports Writer

The refs in the flag football games take more verbal abuse and get involved in more controversies than any ref in any other intramural sport.

Jerry Simon, who is in his third year as a referee, said the games this season seem to be rougher than ever. "It was rough, especially in the beginning of the season," said Simon. "When a team of freshmen get in there, they don't know the rules, and they just go crazy."

Simon said there are about ten teams that are real good and "they know how to make hard hits that are legal."

Most of the arguments center around the illegal block. If the player uses his arms extended, or away from his body on the block, he will be penalized. The only legal block is similar to a pick in basketball. The arms must be tucked up close to the body.

A problem that the refs are hoping to eliminate is fighting. It is only common for a guy who gets shackled on a play to come right back and get even by leveling someone. This usually can, and sometimes does, lead to fisticuffs.

A bigger worry is that the referee will be the recipient of an angry player's swinging fists.

Simon knows what it is like to be refing a game where violence breaks out. Last year Simon got involved in a game where a few calls turned the game around, and the players on the short end of the deal took it out on Simon's face.

"Games that pit black teams against white are the ones to look out for," Simon said. "And it will get worse when the playoffs start."

A new rule was added to the intramural handbook this year to try to avoid physical damage to the refs.

The Abusive Behavior and Unsportsmanlike Conduct policy states that any player who strikes a referee is out of the intramural program for a year.

Despite the problems the referees face, the captains of the top teams are poised and ready for action.

Last year's champion, Gold 'Bo, enters the playoffs undefeated again this year, and Captain Jeff King said his team has been progressing and will reach a climax in the playoffs.

On the subject of the referees, King said, "They have a tough job, and teams are going to get on them, but I don't think the referees will be much of a factor in the playoffs."

King added that the playoffs will be a "wide open affair and an intense series."

One team that has a shot at the title is Phi Sigma Kappa, also 4-0. Team Captain Kirk Champion claims his team has the best defense on campus, pointing out they haven't given up a point yet.

"We haven't had any trouble with referees or injuries, and we have a good chance to go all the way," Champion said.

"Our defense is led by George Vukovich, who doubles as the centerfielder for the Saluki baseball team," Champion laughed.

No matter who walks away as the champ next week, one thing is certain. Once the playoffs start, the intramural game, which is designed for recreation, will turn into a serious business.
